All cattle above this number were taken over by the government and turned over to their various agencies.

Control of Business

- 7. By the end of 1952 all profitable business, including the silk industry in Khotan (N 37-07, E 79-55), was under government control. Private business was discouraged, and almost all shops had been turned into government—owned cooperative stores. The salaries paid to shopkeepers were barely enough to cover their living expenses.
- 8. Any person found with gold or silver in his possession was suspected of engaging in black-market traffic in these metals, a crime, and was subjected to official interrogation concerning the manner in which he obtained it.

Soviets

9. In late 1952 Soviets, posing as engineers, were in almost every town in southwestern Sinkiang.

Propaganda

- 10. In every administrative unit youth organizations had been established to carry on propaganda work aimed at reactionary elements in the population.
- 11. Pictures of MAC and Stalin were displayed in almost every home.
- 12. The officials in the government of Sinkiang Province were telling the people that the Chinese in the administrative structure were there simply to teach the natives of Sinkiang the art of governing, and that soon the full governmental administrative responsibility would be turned over to the people of Sinkiang.

Purges, Arrests and Executions

- 13. In the fall of 1952 all former Kuomintang employees were being called upon to confess any corrupt practices in which they had engaged during their careers in the government. Merchants were being constrained to reveal any negligence on their parts in the payment of government taxes during the past twenty years, and to pay the present government any amounts still due. Severe punishments were inflicted on persons trying to conceal their guilt.
- 14. Persons classified by the government as exploiters were required to undergo public trial. Should an exploiter be found guilty, the public determined which of the following punishments should be inflicted on him: death and confiscation of property, torture and confiscation of property, or imprisonment with re-education. Relatives of the accused who manifest their emotions during the trials were subjected to the same penalties as the accused.
- 15. All pilgrims who returned to Sinklang from Mecca via India and Pakistan were arrested by the Sinklang authorities when they re-entered the province. Those not executed were released from prison late last year. 5
- 16. In Karghalik (N 41-15, E 77-26) hsien 300 persons, including village clan leaders, large landowners and other prominent people. During 1952 the following persons were publicly executed in Karghalik: Shofan Tohti Beg, Zunlong Tohti Beg, Yasin Bawjang, Aykipek Khan, Musa Khan, Tohtisun Haji, Azam Khan, Nor Yegit, Ruzi Beg Haji, Makoshin Mirab and Abdul Khaliq.
